

Caring for your Futomat

Because of the way Futomats are made, with layered fabric fillings, they initially contain a lot of air. Your Futomat will always 'settle' by approximately 20% in the first few weeks of use. To take this into account our Futomats are much thicker than their Japanese futon counterparts.

To look after your Futomat and stop it settling unevenly, we suggest you roll it one way and then another, or occasionally give it a shake (a job for two people) to re-distribute the fibres. Settlement may be irregular and more noticeable if a person lies in one position on the Futomat constantly or a single person sleeps in the middle of a double Futomat. We recommend that use of a Futomat should be regulated across the surface to allow even settlement.

Your Futomat is a mattress therefore the outer cover cannot be removed. For removal of small stains, we suggest using a damp, but not wet cloth or if necessary a dry-cleaning spray. The futon should be well ventilated afterwards.

Air the mattress - It is important to let your Futomat breathe to allow moisture to dissipate as one body produces over a pint of moisture during the night.

Use on a bed base - The mattress is not designed to be used without a bed base. Check that the bed base is undamaged and supportive or this could affect your guarantee. We suggest a slatted base is best and the slats need to be approximately 7.5cm apart.
